UMPIRE 'JUMPS' IN MOTOR CAR

Red Held Makes Trip After Angel and Tiger Games in His Reo Four to Seal Camp

"Red" Held, well known Coast League umpire, has discovered a way to relieve the monotony of umpiring by cross-country automobile touring. Instead of traveling by train between Los Angeles and San Francisco, when he and "Kitty" Brashear are called to work in the Hay City, Held jumps into his trusty Reo "four" after the game on Sunday afternoon and drives to the North. Road conditions are such now that the trip is an easy one, and Held reports a very delightful journey on his last excursion to San Francisco.

Held made the journey up by the valley and back by the coast route. The valley is in excellent condition, of course, but the return trip over the coast route offered considerably more excitement.

"California certainly should vote those added road bonds this fall," declared Held last week. "It would be a shame to leave that beautiful coast road in its present condition. There are patches of good road all the way down, but you sure do strike some bad spots in between."

"Up at the Salinas river crossing the bridge was washed away last winter. They are just building a temporary structure there now. Ever since the storms a man with a team has been making good money hauling motorists across for $5 per. When I got there I found that the bridge had been so far completed that there were two rows of piling across the river with single planks connecting them."

I decided to try to cross on the planks after measuring to see if the Reo would fit the tracks. There was about three inches leeway on each side of the wheels and Brashear went along ahead of me to advise me how to steer.

Mrs. Held was not at all enthusiastic about this part of the trip. These planks were mighty narrow and it was a long ways down to the water. About half way across she said that she had heard thousands of people say I was crazy, but she had never believed it until then.

"Anyway, we got across all right, but I think I will vote for the good roads this fall. Probably my share of the taxes will not be much more than the money I didn't pay the man with the team."

John Watt was a returning passenger from the mainland to arrive this morning and long before noon he was greeting his friends in the business district. As he had just visited the Mineral Products properties he was met with frequent queries as to how he found the condition of affairs in that company.

Watt is enthusiastic on the property, he states. He adds that he found greater deposits of minerals than he had heard of in any of the past reports which had reached him. He is now in favor of starting production in all of the resources of the company as soon as possible, not to delay one for another, and to carry them all along simultaneously.

With the arrival of Watt it now becomes possible to secure a quorum for a directors' meeting and one has been called to be held tomorrow morning.

Met in the Movies

Right as well confess—there was some pep to the movie version of "The Old Homestead."

We are going to have Francis Ford and Grace Cunard with us for the next 14 weeks. "The Broken Chain" is their vehicle.

Having been dope fiend, anarchist, ragamuffin and other domestic pets for the past five months, Blanche Sweet will have an opportunity to wear "fine feathers" in "The Sowers."

Sessue Hayakawa has set a new standard in acting. The Japanese of this city will have to admit that they were a mite proud of their leading actor, even though he did play the "villain."

The sight of slushy, snowy, sloppy New York was too much for Pauline Frederick when she returned from Florida. "And this is what I have come to," is what she was heard to say. Pauline is figuring upon a Honolulu trip next winter.

"Walk if you would be beautiful," admonishes Pauline Frederick. "Five miles is my daily dose, and I prefer shoe leather to any motor car or conveyance, except in inclement weather." She stands alone in her ideas, for all the other Paramount stars have taken to motoring as a mania.

Cleo Ridgely, the beautiful Lasky star, who is appearing with Wallace Reid in the photo-play production of Jean Macpherson's thrilling love story, "The Golden Chance," which will be seen at the Liberty in about two weeks, has been considered one of the photo-drama's most captivating stars. Outside of her work Miss Ridgely's greatest passion is horseback riding and when she is not at the studio she is exploring the trails and byways of the California mountains. Several years ago Miss Ridgely started from New York City and rode horseback all the way to Los Angeles. It took her 18 months to make the journey, but she arrived with the same horse and dog with which she left the Eastern metropolis. "Several times" she was delayed by snow and floods and from "Pittsburgh" she had to retrace her way as far east as Washington and then approach California over the southern route through Texas.

Constance Collier, the noted London star, in Oliver Morosco's filmization of "The Tongues of Men," coming soon on the Paramount program, is one more new addition to the deserts from the speaking stage.

The diet of "The Tongues of Men," the high church rector of St. Martin-in-the-Lane and the emotional grand opera diva, whose performance in a sensational opera the rector denounces from the pulpit, is a shower of flying sparks. The sentimental development with which the duel ends up makes one fairly catch one's breath by its very daring. Constance Collier, a strikingly beautiful woman, appears to fine advantage especially in the stage scenes in the grand opera house, which were taken in one of the largest Pacific Coast theaters, by the way. Forrest Stanley, one of the handsomest leading men on the stage, gives a performance as the young rector which makes his recent alliance with motion pictures all the greater a blessing. "The Tongues of Men" is another Oliver Morosco ten-strike.

NEW OFFICIAL REGULATIONS.

Recommendations from Committee on Badges and Awards Approved by Executive Board.

The following recommendations of the Committee on Merit Badges, Awards and Scout Requirements approved by the Executive Board at its regular meeting on Feb. 28:

1. That the rank and badges for commissioned officers of the local council be made uniform throughout the country as follows:

- Scout Commissioner, Dark blue with wreath
- Deputy Scout Commissioner, Dark blue with wreath
- Asst. Deputy Scout Commissioner, Light blue without wreath
- Scout Executive, White with wreath

2. That insignia for Scout Scribes be provided for Tenderfoot, Second Class or First Class Scouts, according to the scout's rank, with two pens crossed below the badge.

3. That the cooking requirements for the First and Second Class test be harmonized so as to avoid confusion.

4. That requirement for knot tying in the Tenderfoot degree be made more specific by requiring that the scout be able to tie any four of the eight knots, and that this be interpreted to mean that the examiner will call on him for any four of the eight.

5. That the merit badge test for Eugling include the list of standard calls as published in the BOY SCOUT DIARY.

6. That the Executive Board work out some plan for suitable recognition for five years' service on the part of the scoutmaster.

7. That the National Council, through the various local councils and other ways at their command, recommend the use of leather puttees by officers only.

8. That a registration plan for Lone Scouts be adopted.

9. That a Safety First Merit Badge be approved and requirements for same be perfected.

SACRIFICES OF FATHER FUTILE WHEN SON DIES

Putting goth his life and his meager savings into the education of his boy, striving on a plantation and depriving himself of the necessities of life in order that his son might go to a school in Honolulu, watching eagerly for the day of graduation, when the boy would come back with an American diploma—this is a chapter in the story of a Japanese laborer on Kauai.

This is only one chapter, however, and there is another, for the boy took tuberculosis in the school and is dead.

The father, who was a widower, is living out his life alone, trying to reason out, mayhaps, what it all means.

Officers at the anti-tuberculosis bureau of the board of health have told the story to the Star-Bulletin.

The laborer's wages were $20 a month, and from that he saved $8 for himself, sending $12 to the boy in Honolulu. Hard work and meager meals brought the father down to a mere skeleton, but the monthly allowance kept coming here for the boy.

Six months ago the boy took sick. A doctor was called to find the disease was quick consumption, and everything possible was done to save the young life, but in vain. Death came a few weeks ago.

First it's POLICE. THEN UNCLE SAM ON JOE IOKEWE'S TRAIL.

Charged with carrying on the business of a brewer and retail malt liquor dealer without a license, Joe Iokewe was arrested by the federal officials yesterday afternoon and is now being held pending investigation. The police arrested Iokewe yesterday for selling booze without a license. He was fined $100.

OFFICERS FROM MAUI WILL ATTEND BIG CELEBRATION.

Reports from the other islands are to the effect that several officers of the guard will be visitors here for the polo matches, and for the big military tournament on Sunday morning.

Among these will be Maj. W. H. Rice, 4th Infantry, Kanai; Lieut. Albert Horner, 3d Infantry, Kanai; Capt. P. F. Baldwin, Capt. A. W. Collins, Capt. H. W. Hines and Col. H. A. Baldwin, all of the 3d Infantry, Maui.

MACKENZIE O. K.

Although reported to have been seriously injured by being "precipitated" through the windshield of an automobile near the boys' industrial school at Waialea on Memorial Day, J. Harris Mackenzie, manager of the Olapa department of Bishop & Company, was quite lively today and stated over the telephone that he is not so badly hurt as rumor has made him.

Mackenzie says that he did have an automobile accident near the industrial school, his machine having skidded off the road. "I received a slight cut on the face, but other than that, I am all right," he adds. Mackenzie is now enjoying his vacation.
